

HOW WAS POLITICAL COIN USED?

TALK OF PRINCE KUHIO TO SUCCEED FREAR

PUBLIC WANTS TO KNOW HOW POLITICAL MONEY WAS SPENT

All sorts of reports are being circulated by Democrats and others about the expenditures made by the Republican campaign committees, and it is possible that the committee which had charge of the campaign will be required to make public its financial outlays. There are rumors of big sums handed out and big money paid to runners. Democrats are charging the expenditure of a campaign fund of over $35,000, and L. L. McCandless, defeated candidate for delegate to Congress, this morning referred to "stuffed ballot boxes" as one reason for some of the Republican victories.

Under these circumstances, Republicans would like to see a complete list of the expenditures made, and many members of the party declare that such a publication would be in the interest of pure politics here in future. On the mainland such a publication is required by law in many places, and in others it is urged as a political issue.

On the other hand, there are charges of heavy expenses by the Democrats, though the campaign committee claims to have been almost without funds. One report has it that McCandless spent over $20,000, but this is believed to be an exaggeration. According to talk on the street today, there is a strong sentiment among Republicans in favor of having the Republican campaign committee take the public into its confidence, and adopt the policy in vogue elsewhere, of letting the public know just where and how it spent the money contributed for campaign purposes.

GOVERNOR KUHIO, DELEGATE SHINGLE AND OTHER DREAMS

Now that the mainland election is over, with a Democratic victory which looks very like a landslide, a lot of the faithful Unterrified in Hawaii are carefully studying the prospects as to various local lucrative jobs which will be filled by President Harmon, or President Gaynor, or President Wilson, or some other successor to the Peerless Leader who seems now to have a lot of peers, in the event of a Democratic victory in 1912.

The Democratic president would appoint a governor of Hawaii, secretary, collector of customs, United States District Attorney, United States Marshal, collector of internal revenue. It is understood that McCandless would rather like to move into the silent secret chamber where Governor Frear does the Sphinx act almost as well as it is done by the famous mass of rock near the pyramid of Cheops. It seems to be conceded now that Link cannot be delegate to Congress, but as a nifty leader of a forlorn hope he is regarded as entitled to something or other.

For the job in which Breckons is enjoying himself almost as much as he enjoys himself in politics, Wade Warren Thayer is on Democratic slates. Wade was brave enough to undertake, for the Unterrified, the job of running against Cathcart for county attorney, and everyone admits that he is entitled to something as a reward.

All this is figuring two years or more ahead, but it is being done nevertheless. If McCandless goes to Washington he will not be the only Hawaiian Democrat there, and when it comes to the governorship, he may hear from active supporters of W. A. Kinney or Col. McCarthy, neither of whom have anything resembling an infatuation for Link.

Republicans also are doing some figuring regarding the federal appointment here. One plan not a little discussed is the appointment of Kalaniano'le as the successor to Governor Frear. Frear's term expires next June. During the campaign which has just ended, reports were circulated by Democrats that there was a deal on whereby R. W. Shingle, if elected treasurer, was to be candidate for Congress in 1912. Since then the suggestion has been made that this would be a fine scheme if Kuhio could land the governorship. There are those who predict that when Frear's term expires President Taft will be likely to listen to proposals to place Kuhio at the head of the administration here. That would mean a resignation as delegate and another election here, in which Link might have a chance to do the Bryan act again, though most Democrats seem to think he has been on the burning deck long enough. Kuhio doesn't like the Washington job very much, but would dearly like to be governor.

"Hot air and lies," is what Link McCandless has to say in reply to the story that he might go to Washington with a view to working with the Democratic Congress to oppose anything that Delegate Kuhio might propose. Link also declared that he was very unfairly treated in the publication of such reports. "There is no difficulty in reaching me and interviewing me at any time," said McCandless, "and I think in common fairness I should be asked about it before reports like that are published."

McCandless did not deny that he might go to Washington, but he declared that the story that he had decided to go there was untrue, and that the report of his planning to block Kuhio's plans in Washington was also false.

ILLEGAL VOTING IN KAKAOKO; POSSIBLE CONTEST FOR LANE

Some violations of the election law in the Kakaoko precinct, the sixth precinct of the Fourth district, are being considered at Republican headquarters, with a view to a possible contest of the result which contest, if successful would seat John Lane as mayor.

In this precinct there was a long line of voters in waiting all day. It seemed impossible to poll all the voters who were registered and were at hand trying to vote, and late in the afternoon the election officers began to allow them to vote two and three at a time in each election booth. They also allowed voters to mark ballots in other places than the booths prepared for balloting, according to report. This is claimed to have been a clear violation of the provisions of the law with regard to the secrecy of the ballot. The law states in plain terms that voters shall mark their ballots only in the secret booths, and that not more than one voter shall be in a booth at once.

According to other reports from this precinct, the blockade which made it impossible for many voters to get their ballots in the regular way was a deliberate scheme. It is stated that some voters spent as much as an hour in booths, marking their ballots, while the line of waiting voters grew.

Whether this irregularity and the violation of the law regarding secrecy of ballot justifies a contest is what the Republicans are considering. In the precinct Fern had 230 votes and Lane 152. If the vote of the precinct should be thrown out, there would be a net gain of 78 votes for Lane and Lane would be elected by a majority of 26.

No other office would be affected by the throwing out of the precinct vote. It is possible that the matter may be taken to the Supreme Court.

SIBERIA HAS A SMALL LIST OF PASSENGERS

With over 7,000 tons of cargo on board and 306 passengers, the Pacific Mail steamer Siberia arrived in port early this morning, berthing at the Alakea street wharf shortly before 10 o'clock. A pleasant trip from Japan was experienced, fine weather prevailing all the way. From Manila the Siberia proceeded direct to Shanghai, cutting out Hongkong en route, but the usual ports were touched at after Shanghai. Of the cargo 310 tons are for Honolulu, the balance going to San Francisco. Included in the coast freight are 2,000 bales of silk, but the rest is general merchandise.

There are 49 saloon passengers on board, 45 in the second class and 212 in the steerage. Of the saloon passengers six are remaining here, these being Mrs. S. Gertz, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Barkley, W. S. Barkley, S. B. Trissel and G. H. Shaw.

Mrs. S. Gertz has returned from a visit to her daughter in Shanghai, Mrs. P. M. Brooks at Shanghai, S. B. Trissel, a well-known journalist, who has connections with home papers and who has spent considerable time on the China coast and in Manila, will probably remain in Honolulu until the next boat to the coast. He is secretary to the Manila carnival and is taking a vacation prior to settling down

QUEER CHARGE OF CROOKED WORK

Reports were circulated today by Democratic politicians that a remarkable new system of forcing Republican ballots had been worked on Tuesday, and it was said that McCandless was going to Washington to expose it. The report was that various plantation managers had supplied their employees with sample ballots and carbon paper, and required them to return the sample ballots duly marked as Republican as evidence of their having voted a Republican ticket. Those circulating the rumor did not give the name of any plantation manager foolish enough to place himself in the hands of any employee who felt like sending him to jail for trying to work such a scheme, nor did they explain why any voter couldn't mark up the sample ballot any way he wanted, with the carbon paper, and then vote as he pleased. Nevertheless the charge that the scheme had been worked was quite extensively circulated.
